The "At Home" of Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Smith, in the Opera House last Thursday night, was a most delightful event. Last Sunday was Missionary Day in the Methodist Church. The Pastor preached in the morning and in the evening Rev. Dr. Endicott of West China, delivered an inspiring address. Dr. Endicott has spent 17 years in China and as a result is an authority on Chinese customs and habits. In an address which lasted over an hour, the Dr. gave a picture of China 17 years ago and China today. Very marked changes have taken place and all of the changes for the better. A few years ago Chinamen looked upon the foreigner as an intruder and the Christian Missionary was called a foreign devil. Today the people of China are looking to Christian lands for light along all lines of life. The Chinaman of China as pictured by the Dr. is altogether a different and better man from the Chinaman as we find him in Canada. The offerings during the day were for missionary work and in cash and subscriptions amounted to $500. The offerings of the League and some who were not present will bring this up to about $450 for the present year.

The other day a few farmers talking on the street admitted their crops were not much of a success, when a successful farmer came along and they asked him how he accounted for his big crop this season. He replied he thought it was all in the preparation of the soil and by request proceeded to explain how he plowed, harrowed, disked, and repeated the operations. Before he got nearly through he was interrupted by "If you think we are going to all that work you are very much mistaken." And the successful farmer wended his way to the bank.

W. S. Mooney for Mayor.

We understand that a large and influential body of our citizens will say Mayor Mooney to stand for reelection in the forthcoming elections.

During his tenure of office Mr. Mooney has worked his hardest in the interests of Lacombe, and it would be a hardship for the town to lose his services at the present time.

Next year is bound to be a critical one for Lacombe, and the town will need the services of a man who will put her interests before everything else. Mr. Mooney is that kind of a man.

The Municipal Elections.

In a couple of weeks the citizens of Lacombe will be called upon to select men for the positions of Mayor and Councilors for 1911. At present writing there appears to be no great rush on the part of citizens for the vacancies on the Board, and it is time that the matter was being taken up seriously. Next year's council will have a lot of work to attend to. One of the chief items on the list is the completion of the repairs to the electric light plant.

tric light plant. While the water power ran the lights for seven months this year, about a month ago the wheel went out of business, and it was found necessary to replace it with a new one.

Men are now at work on the plant, and the new wheel has been ordered and will be on the ground in a couple of months. That the town has a valuable asset in the water plant is evident when one considers that during the summer the cost of power was fifty dollars per month, as against two engineers salaries and sixty tons of coal per month by steam. Next year's council should do all in their power to have the water power and of the electric plant put in shape and kept up-to-date.

From present indications there will be a large amount of cement sidewalk laid next season. The new council should be composed of men who will carry out the ideas of this year's council, as regards sidewalks, and stick to the frontage tax system. This system is working well, and to the satisfaction of interested citizens.

And in addition to the electric plant and public works, there will doubtless be many important matters for the council to deal with next year, and it is up to the rate-payers to elect men, by whom they are satisfied the interests of the town will be safe guarded.

Jimmy Fay

The old original funny Jimmy Fay drew a record-breaking house last night at the Comet, and the entertainment furnished by him and his excellent company was thoroughly enjoyed.

Jimmy Fay is a wonder. He never grows old, and into last night's performance he put as much vim as he did in his performances twenty years ago. Reuben Fay, his son, whom he is introducing to the public on this tour, is a pleasing entertainer, and will doubtless turn out "a chip off the old block."

The songs by Miss Florence McNeill were greatly appreciated, and the singer was compelled to respond to repeated encores.

Miss Florence Galbraith, dramatic reader, was also well received, while the accompanist, Miss Agnes B. Quigley was—what's the use of saying any more—Jimmy Fay wouldn't appear with a company that was excelled by any other aggregation on the road.

Grain and Stock.

Threshing is about finished, and it is now the general expectation that grain will be offered freely, and that present prices will not be maintained. However, we are inclined to a different opinion, and advise the farmers to market their grain with some amount of discretion—not to rush the buyers, and to ascertain the market prices before selling.

As an instance showing the prosperous advancement made by many farmers in feeding stock, we quote a statement made by Senator Talbot in the Calgary Albertan of last Saturday: "As a matter of fact," said the Senator, "the great bulk of the grain raised around Lacombe is fed to stock and marketed in the hoof in the spring. The practice has made the farmers of the Lacombe district among the wealthiest and best situated in the province. It also gives the Lacombe district beef such an enviable reputation."

The Death of Tolstol.

The death of Tolstol removes a most remarkable figure. He was, more especially in his later years, a rabid social reformer. There can be no doubt as to the purity of his motives, but, in striving to live, what was to him, the ideal life, he caused the immediate members of his family no little unhappiness. Naturally they objected to his attempts to work out his theories by living the plain, hard life of a peasant and his antagonism to his schemes and their own obstinate adherence to them caused a rupture that was never healed. Even in his dying moments, he professed extreme anger because his son was allowed to see him and he would not permit of his wife to minister to him while he was conscious.

Tolstol had the welfare of the peasants of Russia at heart, but there is a difference of opinion as to the value of the methods he followed in his efforts to help them. In the end, he died a martyr to his own cause. He died from his fairly comfortable home in Yasnaya, Poliana, in October and was found a month later on a distant estate. In the meantime, he had subjected his frame to such hardships that when discovered he was at hand grips with death. Exposure had brought on inflammation of the lungs and all that could be done was to prolong his life for a few hours.

PREVENTION OF TYPHOID FEVER.

Toronto Hospital Superintendent Tells of Method Adopted by Two Armies.

Dr. J. N. E. Brown, Superintendent of the Toronto General Hospital, in an open letter regarding epidemics of typhoid fever at a number of places, says that there is an easily applied method of prevention. This is the use of typhoid vaccine. The General Hospital, Dr. Brown adds, has a considerable stock of vaccine on hand, prepared according to the latest method, and will be glad to provide it free, with instructions for use, to any community or camp desiring it.

The letter in full is as follows: I observe from certain reports in The Globe of Saturday morning last that there is an epidemic of typhoid fever in numerous small communities and also in mining and construction camps throughout the province. It is perhaps not a matter of general knowledge, that science has provided a method of prevention of typhoid fever that is easily applicable to such small communities and camps. I refer to the method of anti-typhoid inoculation of persons exposed to the disease, which was discovered by Sir Almroth Wright, and first used in India, and then in the South African war, and has since been officially adopted by the British army and the American army. Its adoption by these last two resulted from a thorough investigation of statistics of the incidence of typhoid fever among the uninoculated and the inoculated.

Sir Wm. Leishman presents the following figures, culled from official sources, that out of 12,083, 5,478 were inoculated, and that the cases incidence for each one thousand of the above was 28.8 among the uninoculated, and 3.8 among the inoculated. The same authority has recently given the result of inoculation in the second battalion of the Royal Fusiliers in India from Dec. 1, 1904.—Strength of regiment, Dec. 31, 1906, 888; number inoculated, 108, having no cases; non-inoculated, two cases, no deaths; strength of regiment Dec. 31, 1906, 1,018; number inoculated, 151, from which there were nine cases and no deaths; among the non-inoculated there were 35 cases and five deaths.

In 1908 the United States army appointed a medical board to consider the whole question. On this board were the leading medical and scientific authorities of the United States. Their conclusions are given as follows:—

(1) The board is convinced that the practice of anti-typhoid vaccination is both useful and harmless, and that it offers a practical means of diminishing the amount of typhoid fever in the army, both in times of peace and war.

(2) It finds that the experience to date with anti-typhoid vaccination justifies it in recommending the introduction of the practice in the regular and volunteer armies in time of war.

(3) It recommends the immediate introduction of the practice of vaccination against typhoid in the hospital corps, the army nurse corps and in any expedition of troops from the regular army which is ordered to take the field for active operations; and, further, that an opportunity be given to volunteers from the army as a whole to be protected by vaccination against typhoid.

It seems scarcely necessary to labor the question further, as the efficacy of the method of inoculation has been now directly attested by the experience of ten years. The method consists in injecting a certain dose of what is called the typhoid vaccine. Ten days later twice the dose is administered and the immunity from typhoid though not absolute is almost so and has a duration of about two years. The individual sometimes suffers a day or two of inconvenience and discomfort from swelling and pain at the site of injection, but nothing more.

I beg to inform you that our department of therapeutic inoculation in the General Hospital has a considerable stock of this vaccine on hand prepared according to the latest method, and that we will be glad to supply this material gratis, with instructions for administration to any community or camp which may desire it in order that their residents may be greatly protected from contracting the disease, and in case of infection much more likely to recover as a result of having been inoculated before falling ill.

Canada Cement Company Reduces Prices.

The price of Cement has been lowered. This announcement may come as a surprise to many—for, when Messrs. merge, the opposite tendency is usually looked for, but this time the unexpected has happened.

About a year ago most of the largest cement interests joined hands and formed one company, known as The Canada Cement Company, Limited. It was immediately predicted, in many quarters, that prices would be advanced, that on account of the big merger the consumer would have to pay dear for his cement in future. The promoters of the Company, on the other hand, stoutly contended this theory, pointing out that owing to reduction of expenses and increased efficiency, they hoped to be able to give even cheaper cement than ever before.

The first move on the part of the Cement Company was to regulate the price of its product, and it was an agreeable surprise to everyone when it was learned that in making the adjustment prices were not unduly advanced. That was last year.

On the 1st of November this year, a circular was sent out by the Canada Cement Company, further reducing the price of its product throughout the entire Dominion on an average of about 10c per barrel.

This reduction means a whole lot, and proves beyond doubt the sincerity of the statements made by the promoters, when the Company was yet in embryo.

The A.C.W.R. Commission's Report.

Calgary News.—The report of the Royal Commission, appointed to investigate the Alberta and Great Waterways Railway transaction, was presented to the legislature yesterday and is now a matter of general knowledge. The three judges are unanimous in their finding that Dr. Rutherford and Mr. Cross had no personal interest in the transaction, but while Judge Scott and Judge Harvey find that J. K. Cornwall's connection with the deal is to be criticized, Judge Beak's conclusions are that Mr. Cornwall's conduct was above suspicion. On the other hand, Judge Scott and Harvey express the opinion that W. H. Cushing had no part in the informal negotiations and that he did nothing beyond acquiescing in their formal acceptance by the government, but Judge Beak expresses the belief that Mr. Cushing did figure in these negotiations and that he was present at that meeting in Calgary, of which he so forcibly disclaimed knowledge. Judge Beak considers that Mr. Cushing's conduct should have been investigated quite as thoroughly as that of Dr. Rutherford or Mr. Cross.

All three judges are agreed that the Rutherford administration was not guilty of any corrupt practices in connection with the transaction. The government's methods were hardly businesslike, but they were not dishonest. Their unbusinesslike character was responsible for suspicions, which the commission found to be baseless. If any persons are in doubt as to the correctness of the conclusions drawn by the judges and form conclusions of their own. The consensus of opinion is that the commission made an exhaustive study of this evidence and that their findings are the result of painstaking and conscientious effort to arrive at the truth. That they should not all reach the same conclusions is not a startling outcome of their investigations. The judges of the supreme court of Canada do not always agree. The essential fact is that they find that the Rutherford administration was honest.

A Real Measure of Relief.

Bill No. 29, being entitled an act respecting charges upon land contained in certain instruments, is the formal title of an act introduced in the legislature under the fostering care of Duncan Marshall which will, when passed, afford a greater measure of relief and satisfaction to the agriculturists of the province than probably any other bill passed by this or any other Canadian legislature. It is a simple little bill of only two clauses, and while the language is the involved legal phraseology which is generally used to describe a simple provision, its purpose is clear enough to those who understand.

The purpose of the bill is to abolish forever the iniquitous system by which machine companies sell farmers implements and take a lien on all their possessions. The necessity of the bill does not have to be explained to the farmer. He appreciates it all too fully now. Many of them have had the experience of overlooking the newspaper type at the bottom or on the back of the lien which they signed, to discover when a crop failure overtook them that they had given a mortgage on their farm, and that failing to produce the pound of flesh they were in the hands of the machine agents to the limit of the law.

The Marshall bill provides that notwithstanding anything that may be printed or written on a machine note, the company cannot claim a mortgage on the farm. It is brief enough, and to the point. Hereafter, when a machine agent sells a machine he will have to accept the same standing as any other creditor that the farmer may happen to have. The machine company will not have the privilege of breaking up the farmer's home in case a crop should fail.

Our Mothers.

This editorial is not written for women. It is written for men, and for boys; for the millions who fail to appreciate the work that mothers do, for the millions who ignore the self-sacrifice and devotion upon which society is based.

On a hot night, in the dusty streets of a dirty city, you see hundreds of women sitting in the doorway, taking care of babies.

In lonesome farm houses, far out on monotonous plains, with the late sun setting on a long day of hard work, you find women, cheerful and persevering, taking care of babies.

In the middle of the night, in earliest morning, when men sleep, all over the world, in ice huts north, in southern tents, in big houses and in dingy tenements, you find women awake, cheerfully and gladly, taking care of babies.

We respect and praise the man selfishly working for himself.

If he builds up a great industry and a great personal fortune, we praise him.

If he risks his life for personal glory and for praise, we praise him.

If he shows courage even in saving his own carcass from destruction, we praise him.

There was never a man whose courage, or devotion, could be compared with that of a woman caring for her baby.

The mother's love is unselfish, and it has no limit this side of the grave.

You will find one man in a thousand who will risk his life for a cause.

You will find a thousand women in a thousand who will risk their lives for their babies.

Everything that a man has and is he owes to his mother. From her he gets health, brain, encouragement, moral character, and all his chances of success.

How poorly the mother's services is repaid by men individually, and by society as a whole!

The individual man feels that he has done much if he gives sufficient money and a little attention to her who brought him into the world, and who sacrificed her sleep and youth and strength for his sake.

Society, the aggregate of human beings, feels that its duty is done when a few hospitals are opened for poor mothers, and a little medicine doled out in cold-hearted fashion to the sick child.

Fortunately, it may truly be said that the great man is almost always appreciative of his greater mother.

Napoleon was cold, jealous of other men, monumentally egotistical when comparing himself with other sons of women. But he revered and appreciated the noble woman who bore him, lived for him, and watched over him to the end. He said:

"It is to my mother, to her good principles, that I owe my success and all I have that is worth while. I do not hesitate to say that the future of the child depends on the mother."

The future of the individual child depends on the individual mother, and the future of the race depends on the mothers of the race.

Think what has been done for mankind by thousands of millions of perfectly devoted mothers.

Every mother is entirely devoted, entirely hopeful, entirely confident that no future is too great for her baby's deserts.

The little head—often hopelessly ill-shaped—rolls about feebly on the thin neck devoid of muscles. The toothless gums chew whatever comes along. The wondering eyes look feebly, aimlessly about, without focus or concentration. The future human being, to the cold-blooded onlooker, is a useless little atom added to the human sea of nonentity.

But to the mother that baby is the marvel of all time. There is endless meaning in the first mumble; endless soul in the feeble, baby smile; unlimited possibilities in the knobby forehead and round, hairless head. She sees in the future of the baby responsibilities of government, and feels that one so perfectly lovely must eventually be acclaimed ruler of mankind.

As a result of perfect confidence in future, the mother gives to every baby perfect devotion, perfect and affectionate moral education. Each child begins life inspired by the most beautiful example of altruism and self-sacrifice.

Kindness has gradually taken the place of brutality among human beings, because every baby at its birth has found itself surrounded by absolute kindness.

The mother's kindness forms moral character.

The mother's confidence and encouragement stimulate ambition and inspire courage.

The mother's patient watchfulness gives good health and fights disease when it comes.

The mother's watchful protection shields the child from the stern and dwarfing severity of fathers.

Truly, a man may and should be judged by his feeling toward his own mother, and toward the mothers of other men—of all men.

In the character of Christ, whose last earthly thought on Gethsemane was for His Mother, as in the character of the hard-working ignorant man whose earnings go to make his mother comfortable, the most beautiful trait is devotion to the mother who suffers and works for her children, from the hours that precede their birth through all the years that they spend on earth together.

Honor thy father and thy mother.

And honor the mothers of other men. Make their path easier through fair treatment of the men who support the children, through good public schools for their children, through respectful treatment of all women.

The mother is happy. For she knows "the deep joy of loving some one else more than herself."

You honor yourself, and prove yourself worthy of a good mother and of final success, when you do something for the mothers of the world.

Armaments and Expenditure.

There is a tendency to regard the heavy outlay from year to year upon the naval defences of the empire as an unmitigated evil.

Reference is constantly made to "the burden of armaments," and it is sometimes suggested that many of the social evils of our time may be traced directly to the money and energy that are devoted to the maintenance of our sea supremacy.

Strict political economists look upon the expenditure as non-productive. They indulge in wonderful arithmetical calculations as to the productive work which could be paid for with the thirty odd millions now devoted to naval purposes, and picture the model social system which might immediately come into being if the millenium dawned and if warships were no more.

The financial burden of naval armaments is undoubtedly heavy but there is no country of importance of the world which obtains its defensive forces at so relatively small an outlay and with so little personal inconvenience on the part of the general population as the united kingdom. It is fortunately so wealthy and so well populated that, apart from the freedom from compulsory military service which the navy secures, thus contributing directly to the empire's productive power, the per capita contribution to the fleet's support is exceedingly light. No reasonable person would desire to lay out upon naval defences a single dollar more than is necessary to security. But below this the empire cannot go, because peace is of the highest importance.

Twenty years ago the automatic two power standard was adopted by European powers and since that time governments have had little control over the rate of naval expenditure. That depends on the activity of the next two great powers. In these circumstances a large proportion of the national revenue has to be devoted to the fleet. There is no way of escape from the liability. Governments have tried to negotiate with rival powers for a lower scale of expenditure and failed. Since, therefore, it is necessary to devote up wards of thirty millions in a few years it will be nearly forty millions to the fleet annually it is as well to remember that the large sums disbursed by the various admiralties are not practically thrown into a bottomless sea, as some fervid orators suggest, but contribute materially to the well being of society as a whole.

Death of Miss Hall.

Miss Lena Mary Hall, beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hall, departed this life at the home of her sister, Mrs. R. J. Randolph, on Nov. 18th, 1910, after two years illness. Deceased was born at Sanger Fresno Co., California, on the 31st day of March 1892, died at the age of 18 years, 8 months, 13 days, with enlargement of the spleen. She bore her suffering very patiently until the end.

At three months of age she moved with her parents to Iowa residing there until nine years of age, thence to Alberta, Canada.

She leaves to mourn her loss, father and mother and four sisters, Mrs. Grace Radway, of Minnesota, Mrs. Maud Randolph, of Red Deer, Misses Zada and Ruth Hall. Although she had been a sufferer for so many months, she did not take to her bed until 4 days before her death. She was loved and respected by all who knew her, and the family have the sympathy of the entire community. The funeral services took place at the undertakers parlors, Rev. Brown officiating. Afterwards the remains were laid to rest in the Red Deer Cemetery.

Her voice, so sweet, is hushed and stilled.

She rests in peace above; Her place on Earth can never be filled.

Her life was one of love. She rests in peace so we rejoice, Though tears are in our eyes, We seem to hear her angel voice Singing in Paradise.

Coming to Canada.

The census returns in the State of Iowa show an actual decrease in the population and there is no increase at all in the State of Missouri. This is causing some surprise, but the reason is very evident. These states, particularly that of Iowa, are pretty well filled up. The farm lands are all under cultivation and the price of lands has become very high. As the young farmers could not get the land which they wanted they went some place else, many of them coming to Canada. The movement in population is not difficult to follow.

As these states fill up, it is certain that the movement towards Canada will become more and more apparent. The last of the cheap land in the United States is being placed upon the market now. It is interesting to notice that the arable area of Iowa is less than the arable area of that part of Alberta from Edmonton southward and also that the population of Iowa at the present time. That is an indication of the population that Alberta will have in a very short time. In 1850 Iowa had a population of 192,214. In 1880 it had reached 1,600,000. Early in the '90s it had reached the two millions mark. There are sufficient reasons to believe that the expansion in Alberta will be more rapid than the expansion in Iowa.

A Roosevelt Party.

Across the line many people believe that Theodore Roosevelt is about to undertake the formation of a new party. The recent U. S. election showed that he was far in advance of the Republican party and that that party was dragging along at too slow a pace and was not likely to catch up. On the other hand Roosevelt had the sympathy of a number of Democrats, who would support him but not when allied to the Republican party. The result was that the Republicans switched, the Democrats stayed and that Roosevelt fell between the two.

There is as wide a cleavage between the advanced Democrats and the Democrats who are in control as there is between Mr. Roosevelt and the "stand-paters." It has not been so evident, because the Democrats have not been in power and the basis of union was that they were both against the government. But now that the Democrats have a certain amount of power, it is pretty certain that the difference between the different elements in the party will become apparent.

In both parties there is an advanced wing and a reactionary wing. It seems that the time is about opportune to unite the advanced elements of all parties, leaving the reactionaries behind. It would seem as though Theodore Roosevelt, even though in eclipse at the present moment, is the most likely man to unite the forward elements of all factions into one solid, active, aggressive party.

Liquor Drinking in Britain.

Remarkable proof of the changing habits of home country people is afforded by the first report of the commissioners of customs and excise, issued last month. The returns it contains show a striking and continuous decline in the consumption of spirits and beer. Between 1901 and 1909 the quantities of spirits retained for consumption fell in England from eight pints per head to 4.08; in Scotland from 14.88 pints to 12.16, and in Ireland from 8.72 to 7.52. Mr. Lloyd George's budget of the latter year accelerated the reduction, and for the year to March 31, 1910, the amount fell in England to 4.08 pints, in Scotland to 8.24 pints and in Ireland to 5.04 pints. As regards beer the nationalities are not distinguished, but the consumption in the United Kingdom declined from 31.48 gallons per head in 1901 to 25.87 in 1910. Breweries for sale numbered 4512 last March, a decline from 1901 of 1508, while private brewers, of whom there were 12,410 (almost entirely in England), now number 7,006 only. These figures speak for themselves and the tendency of the last decade is too marked and steady to be regarded as due to temporary influences.

The city of Chicago, under the leadership of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute, voted at a special election to submit itself to a direct tax for a municipal tuberculosis hospital. The board of directors of the new hospital, even before money was available for its use, took upon itself the task of establishing a complete system of dispensary and hospital care for its city. With from half a million to a million dollars yearly at its command, this sanatorium board is expected to demonstrate that the prevention of tuberculosis and the reduction of mortality from it to a practical minimum, are by no means impossible even in a large city.

Which is Your Choice?

Sloppy, leaky wooden troughs, or clean, durable Concrete?

Wooden drinking troughs are about as reliable as the weather.

They are short-lived and require replacing every few years—not to mention continual patching to keep them in repair.

The best of wood cannot withstand, for long, constant dampness and soaking. Its tendency to rapid decay soon shows itself in leaks and stagnant pools of water around trough.

Contrast with this the durability, cleanliness and well-ordered appearance of Concrete.

Which?

The dampness which destroys lumber only intensifies the strength and hardness of Concrete.

You can impair a wooden trough with comparatively little use; but it takes a powerful explosive to put a Concrete water tank out of business.

LUKE McDONOUGH KILLED ON SATURDAY.

Struck on Head by Pike Driver
While Working at Edmonton.

The citizens of Lacombe were greatly shocked to learn on Sunday last that Luke McDonough, a well known and highly esteemed young citizen of Lacombe, had been killed at Edmonton, where he was employed on the high level bridge.

The deceased for some years conducted the Lacombe Dairy, and only went to Edmonton a few days ago.

The following despatch from Edmonton gives the particulars of the accident:

Edmonton, Nov. 20.—With his skull crushed to a pulp by a blow from a 2,800 pound hammer, Luke McDonough, a young laborer employed in the operating of a pile driver on the offer dam for the river piers of the high level bridge fell lifeless to the ground from his station on the huge machine at 10:30 o'clock on Saturday night. It was the first fatal accident in the construction of the big bridge at Edmonton.

McDonough was an unmarried man, 26 years old. His home was at Lacombe, where his father and mother, brother and sister reside.

He has been employed on bridge construction work for less than a week, having engaged with the construction company on Tuesday last. He was employed as a scaffolding man on the pile driver and was stationed at the base of the leads, where he steadied the pile while the blows were descending upon it.

At the time of the accident a new pile was being placed in position to be driven into the bed of the river. It had been lowered to position by means of a rope passed through a pulley at the top of the pile driver and attached to a drum on the engine. The rope had been detached, but the pile moved slightly, so that it was necessary to attach the rope again, to bring it back to place. A signal was passed to the engineer to slacken the rope sufficiently to allow the foreman to hitch it to the pile.

Accordingly, the engine was reversed, and, as the loose rope payed out of the pulley at the top of the leads, the hammer also descended, as both drums on the engine revolved together. McDonough was leaning over with his head between the leads watching operations on the ground below, where the foreman and his assistant were about to adjust the pile. The hammer descended on his skull and he dropped to the ground without a cry. The engineer was the first to realize what had happened. He stopped the engine immediately and ran to where McDonough lay.

Dr. Archibald was summoned from Strathcona by telephone, but the physician ascertained on his arrival that it had been a case of instantaneous death.

Yesterday afternoon Coroner Braithwaite conducted an inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of the man. A jury was empaneled comprising V. B. Robins, (foreman) O. E. Blake, H. Planning, B. Higgins, R. S. Webb and H. F. McDonough. After evidence had been given by McDonough's fellow workmen and Dr. Archibald a verdict was returned stating that death was due to an accident which occurred while the deceased was performing his duties.

McDonough's mother came to Edmonton from Lacombe yesterday afternoon. The body probably will be shipped to Lacombe for burial.

The Merry Musicians.

Only a small audience greeted the "Merry Musicians" on their appearance here on Friday evening. The crowd, small as it was, was more than the aggregation deserved, however. Never in the history of Lacombe, has there been sprung on an unsuspecting public a show with less merit—at the price charged. It is ridiculous to expect theatre-goers to dig up six bits for a ten cent show, and then feel tickled over it, and shows of the class of the "Merry Musicians" will hurt the show business of any town. We do not like to be harsh with any member of the "Merry Musicians" bunch, but the fellow who did the heavy recitation stunts should go back to the farm, and go back quick. He wastes too much horse power for the amount of work he does. The audience really felt sorry for him. Eckhart can play only indifferently on the cornet, and one of the young ladies has what might have been at one time a sweet voice. The other member of the company did not do much work, for which the audience should be thankful.

The Nationalist Victory.

The bye election in Drummond-Arthurs last week which resulted in the defeat of the Liberal candidate assumes serious proportions in view of the nature of the issue on which it was fought. The Conservatives as a party did not nominate a candidate but the Quebec Conservative members came out in strong endorsement for the nationalist, anti-British candidate of Henri Bourassa.

Most passionate appeals to anti-British sentiment were made and the electors were urged to vote against Laurier because he was too British and was building up a navy to help Britain in her wars abroad.

This victory on such an issue is therefore to be deplored from every standpoint of true Canadianism. Had the government of the day received a setback on the ordinary issues it would be a little moment. In fact it is often whole some for a party in power to lose a bye-election.

In this instance, however, the result can only result in fomenting anti-British sentiment and if the movement grows Quebec province will assume in Canada some what the position of Ireland in Britain.

The position of the federal conservative party in relation to this bye-election is interesting. The English speaking conservative leaders, Mr. Borden and his chief lieutenants, did not take part in the fight. Their policy is to declare Laurier too French in English Canada while in Quebec he is declared to be too English. In the opposition press, however, there is a noticeable tone of jubilation at the result, which indicates the lines on which the next election is to be fought.

It matters not, however, to which party a man belongs the result of this election and the growth of the Nationalist movement is a serious matter for Canada.

Thinking Conservatives as well as Liberals realize this, because if the movement did result in the defeat of Laurier in Quebec and of his government, what position would Mr. Borden be in with 65 anti-British members from the lower province.

A Foe of the Tariff.

I'm a foe of the tariff, I am, Pernicious it is, I insist, Its workings are only a sham, Everything should be on the free list;

What I buy should be cheap without doubt,

A rock-bottom price let me tell, The tariff should only keep out The goods that I'm making to sell.

I'd take off the tariff on wool, It's making Green rich, I am sure,

With profits his coffers are full From underwear sold to the poor.

I'd take off the tariff on pills And powders I buy to keep well, I'd keep down the workingman's bills,

But touch not a thing that I sell, I'm opposed to the tariff, I am, The tariff on things I must buy, But I'm mule as an oyster or clam

'Bout the tariff on articles, I Manufacture for sale. Let me say I care not how high that may be, For reform for my neighbors I pray,

But reform mustn't ever touch ME.

An Exponent of Sound Tariff Doctrine.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson, who resigned the presidency of Princeton University to accept the Democratic nomination for Governor of New Jersey, to which office he was elected on Tuesday after a most remarkable campaign, is a trained thinker and speaker, a man of the highest character and ability, who would do honor to the public life of any country. He made a campaign of appeal to the intelligence and patriotism of the people of his State, with perfect good humor and unmitigated earnestness; he told them plainly that his one political purpose is the re-organization of his party, and he declared that he wanted no voter to vote for him on any other understanding. His aim is to use the re-organized Democratic party for the promotion of the public welfare, the two objects which he sets forth as demanding concentrated effort being the reformation of the tariff and the regulation of the powers of corporations.

Woodrow Wilson's declaration of his idea of how the United States tariff should be amended is one which gives admirable expression to views which commend themselves to the large numbers of the people of this country, too. The large majority of the manufacturing industries of the United States, he says, have been so developed and perfected as to render them quite independent of governmental assistance if the able men who have developed and now control them will devote their attention to economy and efficiency. Of the other industries which have been artificially fostered and do not spring out of the natural conditions and capacities of the country, and can be maintained only by a constant aid or subsidy from the public treasury, he says:

"Of these the people must ask themselves the question: Do we wish to maintain them? Can we afford to pay for things not naturally or advantageously produced in America when we could get them as well and much cheaper by importation? Shall we saddle ourselves forever with this systematic charity? There are other industries not yet fully developed to which protection can honestly and consistently be extended until such time as they shall seem ready for independence. There are resources not yet exploited whose exploitation may take time and may need the covert of tariffs. What we need, in brief, is knowledge of the actual facts in respect to each industry, and honestly to act upon those facts when we have ascertained them."

"But how shall we act upon them? Certainly not by rapid and radical changes in our present tariffs, but by such a prolonged and steady change as will bring about an adaptation of the fiscal policy of the government to the real needs and circumstances of our manufacturing and laboring classes, with a view ultimately to get upon this basis: The taxation for the support of the government of those things for which it will not be a real hardship to pay high prices; if taxes upon these do not suffice, the taxation of those things which it will least burden the people to pay for, things not absolute necessities, things which they can do without without suffering or privation, and throughout the whole process an honest seeking for the things which will yield the most revenue with the least burden to the people."

"It is necessary under our dual system of government that the Federal government should depend upon taxes of this sort for the most part of its support, and that almost all direct taxes should be left to the States for their maintenance and development. And it seems a perfectly consistent and legitimate principle to allow the element of incidental protection to come in wherever it may, be brought in without becoming a mere gratuitous subsidy and without cramping and embarrassing the life of ordinary purchasers. There could be no injustice in a policy such as I have outlined, if it were undertaken by a responsible party and adhered to with courage and consistency. The industries of the country could easily adjust themselves if proper time were allowed for the process."

This is sound tariff doctrine, for Canada no less than for the United States. The touchstone it applies to the tariff question is the simple one of the public welfare. All taxes on competition should be reduced when they cannot be shown to serve distinctly and substantially the public good; and the same principle, it is to be added, should regulate the use of corporate powers, the application of that principle requiring that the full light of publicity should be turned on all business to which corporate privileges are granted.

For pains in the side or chest dampen a piece of flannel with Chamberlain's Liment and bleed it on over the seat of pain. There is nothing better. For sale by Dealers everywhere.

They are holding high carnival down at Charlie's grog bar, and the boys are burning money where the shining bottles are; you may hear them shout and sing, and they're finding life a solace as the noisy hours take wing. But the morning, O the morning when the singing rounders wake! When the month is like a hen's nest, and the head a mass of aches! O the agonies remorseful, and the walling that ascend! For all men must pay the fiddler when the dance is at an end. There are fellows all around us, who are cutting quite a swath, thinking that unless they're stylish they are surely in the broth; and they're jangling off to Rome, with a lot of borrowed money and a mortgage on the home. And some day a bossy panic on the land will spread a pall, and a lot of stylish alleys will be backed against the wall; then you'll hear a lot of pleading—pleading all in vain, my friend; for a man must pay the fiddler when the dance is at an end. Little Cora Jane DeJaggers has her feelings badly miffed, for her mother often tells her that her gait is much too swift. With her swagger girl companions through the streets she likes to roam, and she sees the moving pictures when she ought to be at home; she is flirting with the Johnnies in her harmless, foolish way, and she may invest in sackcloth on some bitter future day; for the laws that govern mortals never yield and never bend—girls, like boys, must pay the fiddler when the dance is at an end.

The C. N. R. will now run their Brazeau line into Lacombe.

This line which is now about three and a half miles south-east of town will be into Lacombe in the early spring according to General Manager McLeod.

A large gang of men and teams will work all winter on a heavy cut on the Blindman River near the town's power house, and in the spring will commence the grade into Lacombe.

Where the road will enter the town has not yet been decided upon, but we understand that the company has secured their right of way for most of the distance.

GARLAND--MOONEY.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Mooney, second daughter of Mayor W. S. and Mrs. Mooney, to Mr. D. Garland, took place at the home of the bride on Wednesday afternoon last. The impressive service was witnessed by a number of friends of the contracting parties. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. Powell. Miss Stella Mooney assisted the bride and the groom was supported by Mr. P. R. Talbot.

The bride was attired in a handsome gown of white satin, with bridal veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of ferns and white roses. The bridesmaid wore a dress of blue satin, and carried a bouquet of ferns and pink roses. The happy couple left on the south-bound express for a honeymoon trip through British Columbia and California, and on their return will take up their residence in Lacombe.

The bride was deservedly popular in Lacombe, and the very large number of elegant and costly gifts which she received from friends far and near, bear striking testimony to this fact.

Mr. A. D. Murphy and family wish to sincerely thank their many friends for kindness and sympathy shown in their recent bereavement.

Work has Begun on Electric Ry.

Engineers Start the Survey on Monday Morning Last.

At last it looks as though the settlers to the west of Lacombe will have railway facilities in the near future. On Monday morning Engineer Bergin and staff started on the work of surveying the line from Lacombe to the Blindman Valley. When this line has been laid out, the same party will survey the line from Lacombe to the Coal Banks on the Red Deer.

This survey is being made at the request of Mr. E. K. Strathy, the Canadian representative of a large English financial concern, interested in the coal fields to the east of Lacombe.

The proposed line to the west will accommodate one of the greatest mixed farming districts in the west, and should do a big business from the start. The one thing needed to make the Blindman and Medicine Valleys wealthy communities is railway facilities, and the settlers on there have been praying for relief for many years.

The C. N. R. have found insurmountable difficulties in the way of building their line to the Brazeau through these valleys, and the only feasible scheme now appears to be the building of an electric line from Lacombe to the country west, which will give the settlers the benefit of the Lacombe market, recognized to be the best trading point in Central Alberta.

The proposed line will follow the main road west to Gull Lake, and will then probably run parallel to the lake shore until near Bentley.

With limitless coal fields at one end of the line, and an agricultural country unsurpassed along its entire distance, The Lacombe & Blindman Valley Electric should be a paying venture.

The uniformed gentlemen advertising Magic Baking Powder were in town on Saturday in charge Mr. H. C. Huesha. They left for the south Monday morning.

BENTLEY

See bills announcing the mask ball at Bentley, on December 2.

No railway surveys through the past week, what kind of dope are they giving us.

G. F. Dameron and Tim Sambrooke, accompanied by E. E. Cole and Dr. Collier of Lacombe, left for the Big Hills, where they go in search of the big buck. They are armed with heavy hunting licenses, also rifles.

F. W. Thorp and wife left on Monday for a visit at the McPherson Camp, where F. W. will join the hunters and proceed to slaughter.

We are pleased to note another correspondent to The Globe from this district, giving news items from Rainy Creek to Spruceville. It is so hard, busy as we always are, to catch all the news, and store it for Monday's writing, and the all-important religious side has been somewhat neglected of late.

Notices are up advertising a box social here. Thursday night, December 8.

Rev. O. E. Mann gave the first of a series of sermons on London Slum Life, on Sunday. Incidentally the Rev. O. E. Mann has been having physical exercise in the shape of carpentering.

He is arranging for a regular supply of the very latest pictures, and assures all patrons of The Comet an entertainment well worth the money.

Has T. G. King a Grievance?

T. Clark King, at one time Treasurer of the Town, has put in his semi-yearly claim for moneys alleged to be due him from the town. Lacombe has had auditor after auditor check up the books of our late Treasurer, and none of them were able to bring Mr. King's indebtedness to the town to less than the sum of $668.84. This sum the Bonding Company insisted on Mr. King paying back to the treasury of the town and Mr. King came through. If Mr. King has any doubt in his mind as to the justness of the town's claim against him, he should take the matter before the courts.

The whole case in a nutshell is this. Last year when the audit of Mr. King's books was made, the auditors found that the treasurer was short in his cash to the amount of $668.84. Mr. King refusing to make good, the town called on his bondsmen for the money. The bondsmen got busy and so did Mr. King. He paid back to the town the amount demanded and the town decided to let the matter drop.

The Pekin.

There is no truth in the report that the Pekin is closing down. Mr. Thompson has purchased all the interest of V. Rogers in the opera house, and will run as usual. This week the management decided to reduce the price of admission, and from now on adults will only pay 15c. A splendid line of pictures has been secured by Mr. Thompson, and a specialty of the Pekin shows will be the celebrated "I.M.P." films, than which there are no better made. There will be two performances every night, with change of pictures Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Compel School Attendance.

An act which will compel the attendance of every child of school age at school during the entire school term of the school in his district, and which will prohibit the employment of any child of school age during the hours in which the school in his district is supposed to be in session, is now in the hands of the legislature, and will receive its second reading next week.

The bill was introduced by Attorney-General Mitchell. It provides in addition to compulsory school attendance, for the appointment of truant officers, something which have hitherto not been in existence in the province. Truant officers and compulsory school attendance is something which has been agitated for a long time, and the school boards and educational institutes throughout the province have recently petitioned for this bill.

Superintendent of Neglected Children R. B. Chadwick has also been agitating for some time for the enactment of legislation which would prevent employment of children of school age during school hours. There are several places in the province where children are employed and thus prevented from receiving proper school education.

The act allows employment of children for husbandry, urgent household duties, or in cases where the child must work for his own living or for some person dependent upon him.

The act gives the power of a peace officer to the truant officer, and permits him to enter factories, workshops, stores, and other places in the performance of his duties.

No child under the age of fourteen years who has not a valid excuse under this act shall be employed by any person during school hours while the public school of the district in which the child resides is in session, and any person who employs a child in contravention of this section shall incur a penalty not exceeding $20 for each offence.

The school board of every city or town school district shall appoint, control and pay one or more truant officers for the enforcement of this act and notice of such appointment shall be forthwith given in writing to the municipal council of the city or town.

The minister of education may from time to time appoint such truant officer or officers as may be required for the enforcement of this act in districts that are not included within any city or town school district.
